The following sentences are taken from the text "The Nature of Economics" but they are mixed up randomly. Arrange them in the correct order to form a coherent and logical paragraph. Write the order number (1 to 6) in the appropriate box.

- A. This fundamental problem is known as scarcity, and it forces us to constantly choose what to get and what to give up.
- B. In one sentence, economics is about choice in a world of scarcity.
- C. Economics comes from the ancient Greek word "oikonomia," which means "household management."
- D. People have unlimited wants, meaning they always desire more and better goods and services, like better food, bigger houses, and newer phones.
- E. However, resources are limited because we do not have infinite money, time, or raw materials.
- F. Today, it has a more precise meaning: Economics is the social science that studies how people make choices to satisfy their unlimited wants with limited resources.
